Intellectual Property Notice

Copyright is reserved to the Australian Spinal Research Foundation (the Foundation) all rights reserved. The Foundation either owns the intellectual property rights in the underlying HTML, text, audio clips, video clips and other content that is made available to you on the Spinal Research web site, or has obtained the permission of the owner of the intellectual property in such content to use the content on the Spinal Research web site.

Limited Licence

The Foundation grants to you a limited licence to display on your computer, print and download text, audio clips, video clips and other content that is made available to you on the Spinal Research web site, for non-commercial, personal, or educational purposes only, provided that:

- you do not modify any such content, and
- you include with and display on each copy of such content the associated copyright notice and this limited license.

Notwithstanding the above limitations, subscribers may make appropriate use of this material in their professional practice.

No other use is permitted. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, you may not:

- make any commercial use of such content;
- include such content in or with any product that you create or distribute; or
- copy such content onto your or any other person's World Wide Web site. Nothing contained in this Section shall be construed as conferring any right in any copyright of the Foundation or any other person who owns the copyright in content provided on the Spinal Research web site.

Trade Marks

The Spinal Research logo is a trade mark of the Foundation. No permission is given for its reproduction or publication by any person saves than the allowance made pursuant to a member's rights under the limited licence granted.

All product names mentioned on the Foundation's web site are the trademarks of their respective owners.

No Legal Advice

The information provided on the Spinal Research web site is not intended to be legal advice. Many factors unknown to us may affect the applicability of any statement or comment that we make on the Spinal Research web site to your particular circumstances.

No Warranties

The Foundation does not warrant the quality, accuracy or completeness of any information on our home page. Such information is provided "as is" without warranty or condition of any kind. The Spinal Research web site may include inaccuracies or typographical errors.

No Endorsement

No endorsement of any third party products or services is expressed or implied by any information, material or content referred to or included on, or linked from or to the Spinal Research web site.

Non-Personal Information

Current technology allows tracking of other information originating from an Internet Service Provider, or another originating network component. This information includes the user IP address and domain information.

The Foundation uses a specialised reporting program to record this data when a user visits our site. This information is used to provide aggregate statistical information to help us keep the site functional and responsive, and to determine overall visitor usage patterns. In doing so, we aim to make the site more functional.
