

Strategies for a successful start to your Chiropractic Career

Have all your questions answered by those who have been there and done it at the Free Student Workshop at Parker Seminar Melbourne 2009 July 31, August 1-2.

The transition from University to the beginning of a successful Chiropractic career can often be seen as a very daunting one by students. Parker Seminar Melbourne 2009 is presenting a free workshop where students will have the unique opportunity to interact directly with 3 recent graduates and the Vice President of Parker Seminars to gain significant insights.

The panel will consist of:

Dr Marcus Yeo graduated from RMIT in 2006. Dr Yeo is passionate about assisting people in converting themselves to a wellness based lifestyle.

He will share his own experiences in beginning a chiropractic career with those who will shortly be making a similar transition.

Dr Gilles Lamarche has been a Vice President of Parker Seminars since October 2008 and a member of the Parker College post graduate faculty since 1990. Dr Lamarche first attended Parker when he was a student and has used the Parker principles as the cornerstone of his practice and his life ever since. Dr Lamarche will ensure the student workshop will be one that will inspire the chiropractic student and provide confidence and insights for a successful transition to the Chiropractic profession.

Dr Katelyn McGregor lives and breathes Chiropractic. A 2005 RMIT graduate, Katelyn will share her greatest challenges & opportunities as a student and her transformation to inspired Chiropractor at the workshop.

Dr Brad Atkinson graduated from RMIT in 2002 and spent time working in a number of associate and locum positions. In the last 12 months he has purchased Knox Family Chiropractic. The sharing of this broad based experience will prove to be invaluable to students.

The Students Workshop is free to all students who register as a delegate to Parker Seminar Melbourne 2009 and will be held on the afternoon of Sunday August 2 from 2.00pm till 3.30pm. Be sure to register for the FREE Student Workshop when registering for Parker Seminar Melbourne 2009.
